gsmagazine.co.uk attracts over 50,000 visitors every month* (that's at least 1,500 business visitors every working day!)

Our readers include hotel owners, pub & bar owners, GMs, restaurant managers, interior designers & architects, investors, developers, procurement officers, buyers, specifiers, and a wide variety of hospitality management.

As an average each user spends well over minutes* on our website per visit, scrolling through at least six different pages or sections.

52,796 individual website visits. Average time spent on website per visitor 7m 33s. On average each visitor clicks through to 6.68 separate pages, totalling 352,561 pages read in the past month (Data Source: Google Analytics, July 2024).*

OUR READERS ARE LOOKING TO SOURCE INFORMATION AND TO FIND PRODUCTS AND SERVICES*

The Promenade

In the main lobby, the removal of the mezzanine floor has created a light-filled space of grandeur with a beautiful ornate ceiling supporting a sparkling chandelier centrepiece.

There are significant new artworks in the lobby, placed within the two new alcoves that house the reception and concierge desks.

These are stand-out pieces that truly enhance the arrival experience.

Off the lobby is The Dorchester's famous Promenade that runs through the heart of the building and is perhaps the one area that the hotel's hordes of devotees have cherished the most over the years.

Thankfully, the structure is unchanged although it has been enhanced with better lighting, black marbled columns, a new and sophisticated colour palette, modern artwork and a fabulous new island bar.

Adorning this space is one of just six pianos once owned by Liberace, now meticulously restored by Markson Pianos of London.

We review new openings and refurbishments of high-end and design-led hospitality venues. The above page has been extracted from a recent review of The Dorchester, London.
